OVERVIEW:

RD's In Practice is an educational program aimed at advancing clinical knowledge and ideas in specialty areas of pediatric nutrition. Didactic lectures, question/answer sessions, and networking opportunities will allow time for attendees to discuss emerging topics, evidence based practice and solutions to practice dilemmas.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES:

Upon completion of this program, participants should be able to:

1. Understand the challenges associated with the ELBW/VLBW infant, including the management principles for the first 10 days of life.
2. Understand the key elements to provide aggressive nutrition support to the ELBW/VLBW infant in the first 30 days of life.
3. Understand the critical exposure periods to human milk; how to custom fortify human milk; and what to do when the maternal milk supply diminishes.
4. Understand the role of the feeding therapist in ELBW/VLBW infant - assessing the sensory development and feeding readiness.
